Jes Karper will soon be your favorite rambling string-plucking blues and folk songwriter.

His poetic styling and adventurous spirit have made a lasting impression on thousands of fans from the United States, Mexico and Central America. Born in Pennsylvania, Jes has made his home in Belize, Central America for nearly a decade now, infusing his style with an unmistakably Caribbean vibe.

JES KARPER's new release TRY ON LIFE sings out some of the best soul-searching, mind-provoking music of our day.

Influenced by the works of great artists like Muddy Waters and Bob Dylan, Jes's music combines blues, folk, and reggae in passionate, heartfelt melodies. Jes seeks the Truth in this age of confusion and he places his findings into poems and songs for his listeners. Jes's music speaks to the struggles of the poor and oppressed, the political tensions of our planet, the hazards facing our environment, the beauty of nature, and the spiritual journey of self-discovery. These songs captivate mind, body and soul.

Jes's music is a summer breeze at one verse, and the winds of change at the next. His ability to turn a tale from trite to tantamount is the spark that turns a thought into a call to action. His music has been featured on National Public Radio, KBOO in Oregon, and many other radio stations. Jes has developed a strong fan base through his travels, his music, and his adventurous spirit, as his songs encourage listeners to bring new energy and passion to their own lives.

When Jes puts down his guitar, he is a conservation advocate, raising environmental awareness through guiding kayaks and protecting the jungles, rivers and reefs of the Maya world. He often gets guests on his tours involved in mapping rivers and watersheds to help local conservation efforts. You can find out more about his work at www.conservationadventuretours.com

Jes Karper lives a life of adventure with a strong focus on the earth and spirituality, and we're lucky enough to hear him sing of it.
